CONFERENCES FOR 1930 CLOSE WITH CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SESSIONS

Attendance Reaches 8,000 For All Meetings

The closing exercises of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Conference at East Northfield was held Sunday, August 24 with a full program of services attended by more than a thousand people. In attendance the highest county total was Middlesex with 141. The highest local union was Worcester with 45. New Hampshire with 33 led the delegations from outside Massachusetts.

Dr. Albert W. Beaven, President of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School of Rochester, New York, was the speaker at the morning and afternoon services. His subjects were "The Impotence of Negative Goodness," and "Christian Service as a Great Adventure." Mr. W. R. Moody, son of the evangelist, D. L. Moody, presided.

At the Graduation Service Saturday, afternoon 600 received certificates of award for creditable work done in classes during the conference. Professor A. Edwin Wells of Boston, Dean, presented the diplomas. Mr. Stanley Reis of Boston gave an Organ Recital in connection with this service.

A high point in the conference was the Oratorical Contest, which was won by Miss Helen Marion Russell of Lowell on the subject, Youth and Citizenship. Ever since last April contestants in the twelve county unions have been eliminated until only three remained. The second and third prize winners were Miss Florence Higginbotham of Lowell and Miss Ruth Bergstresser of Haverhill.

The Field Secretary, Russell J. Blair of Boston, arrived on Saturday direct from Berlin, where the World Christian Endeavor Conference was attended by thousands of delegates from all over the world. Daniel A. Poling of New York, the President of the World Conference, announced a six-fold goal for the Christian Endeavor societies of North America. They are Evangelism, Citizenship, World Peace, Missions, Christian Conduct and Devotions and Christian Unity.

The Northfield Conference of Christian Endeavor meeting together for the season was addressed Thursday at the morning chapel service by the Rev. Maurice A. Levy, D. D. minister of the First Baptist Church of Pittsfield. His subject Thursday was "The Spirit of Service." Wednesday he spoke on the "Hunger of the Heart," and Friday his topic was "The Receding Horizon."

When men were speculating about the origin of human difficulties, Jesus was busy with the practical needs of the people about him, Dr. Levy said. The Master knew the limitations of time. He who would be useful in the world must be in the world, the speaker went on to say. He is to mix but not to merge into his surroundings.

In medieval times ascetics feared life, and left that by removing from activity the soul might be saved. Simon Stylites, a tree-sitter of the early days, had to be above as well as away from his fellow men. Such an interpretation of religion is not for today certainly. Religion cannot be realized by an aloofness from everyday life. Religion is a relationship primarily to God, and also to one's fellows.

Some one has said that religion is a vertical relationship to God and a horizontal relationship to man. It does involve contact in terms of influence to result in impact. From these gatherings at Northfield there ought to come dynamic and inspiration to fellowship as a preparation for greater service. When a man gets a vision of God, he looks about for his neighbor.

DR. ALTON MILLER ADDRESSES CONFERENCE ON "SPIRIT OF SERVICE"

Dr. Alton Miller of Boston, formerly President of the Northern Baptist Convention, addressed the Conference on Thursday evening upon "A Shrinking World." He stated that as our world becomes smaller we suffer the pains as well as enjoy the blessings that such an adjustment involves. Where once a political disturbance in India passed unnoticed in America, now it was an event of international significance. Similarly, a peaceful industry like the manufacture of automobiles in America, has a revolutionary influence in India and China.

Nations are feeling each other because they are closer to each other, the speaker continued. Distant peoples now feel the great pressing necessities of nations who have been drawn closely together. The moving of major forces leading to war, individual greed for power, national aggrandizement, and economic pressure, are today of utmost importance not merely to two or three nations but to the entire world.

Certain forces like American movies abroad, phases of our tariff, and a number of our novels create an anti-American feeling among other peoples. However, Americans in general become too friendly and peaceful, and that fundamental kindly spirit will prevail. Too often the worst features of a people have been emphasized instead of the best. The duty of Christians everywhere and young people of America especially is to cultivate the spirit and attitude of Christ in our dealings with each other as individuals and as nations.

Thursday morning Dr. Maurice A. Levy, Minister of the First Baptist Church of Pittsfield, addressed the conference of the Spirit of Service. Friday his topic was The Receding Horizon. When men were speculating about the origin of human difficulties, Jesus was busy with the practical needs of the people about him, Dr. Levy said. The Master knew the limitations of time. He who would be useful in the world must be in the world, he went on. He is to mix but not to merge into his surroundings.

In medieval times ascetics feared life, and left that by removing from all worldly activity the soul might be saved. Simon Stylites, one of the first tree-sitters, had to be above as well as away from his fellows. Such an interpretation of religion is not for us today. Religion cannot be realized by an aloofness from everyday life. Religion is a relationship to God and to one's fellows.

It has been said that religion is a vertical relationship to God, and a horizontal relationship to man. It involves contact in terms of influence to result in impact. From these gatherings at Northfield there ought to come a dynamic and inspiration to fellowship as a preparation for greater service. When a man gets a vision of God, he looks to his neighbor.

DR. JOSEPH L. PEACOCK DISCUSSES NEGRO EDUCATION

Dr. Joseph L. Peacock, president of Shaw University, a college for negroes in Raleigh, N. C., established in 1865, addressed a gathering Friday at East Northfield on negro education since the Civil War.

He was assisted in the compilation of his review by Prof. Benjamin Brawley, head of the English Department at Shaw.

The training of the negro, Dr. Peacock stated, is one of the romances of education in America. Since the Civil War there have been in this work several periods. First in 1865, through the philanthropy of Anna T. Jeanes, a Quaker woman of Philadelphia, special emphasis began to be placed upon the development of rural schools. A little later Julius Rosenwald began to work along private giving to assist the different counties and the negro people themselves in the erection of rural school buildings and through these three combined agencies there are now more than 5,000 Rosenwald schools in the South.

History, he said can never forget the part played by stalwart Northern men and women in the early days, when merely to teach the freedmen sometimes placed one's life in danger; and the names of Erasmus M. Cravath at Fisk, Henry Martin Turner at Shaw, Edmund Asa Ware at Atlanta, and Sophia B. Packard and Harriet E. Giles at Spelman are written large in the history of heroism in America. For fifty years, moreover, Joanna P. More did valiant service in homes throughout the South through the medium of her Fireside schools.

For some time after the turn of the century the work of the negro college was almost in eclipse through the dominance of the idea of industrial training. Since the World war, however, there has been a new recognition of the fact that the colleges must be depended upon for leadership, and especially for the training of teachers for the common schools; and endowments have begun to increase. As standards have been generally raised, both Hampton and Tuskegee, the leading institutions, have attained collegiate rank. Lately there has been revision all along the line. Different colleges have been merged or made to cooperate, and genuine university centers have begun to rise in Nashville, Atlanta, and New Orleans, while Howard University, the government institution in Washington, has both strengthened its foundations and expanded its work.

In recent years the number of young negro men and women who have annually received the A. B. degree has been little more than 2,000. This figure takes not only of the negro colleges in the South but also of Northern institutions attended by negro students. The A. M. degree has been awarded to very near 100, and about 300 each year take professional degrees. The Ph. D. degree has been awarded to very nearly forty negro men and women by the leading institutions of the country—not less than seven times by Chicago, six by Pennsylvania, five by Yale, and four by Harvard. In one notable year, 1921, the degree was conferred upon three women—Eva B. Dykes at Radcliffe, Georgian-na R. Simpson at Chicago, and Sadie T. Mossell (now Mrs. Alexander) at Pennsylvania. This year two men received it, Mason A. Hawkins at Pennsylvania, and Rufus E. Clement at Northwestern, both of whom worked in the field of education. So far seven or eight representatives of the race have been given Guggenheim fellowships for research or creative work.

For years most of the colleges were sustained by the different denominational boards in the North. Recently, however, there has been general effort for permanent endowment, and the negro people themselves are being called upon in increasing measure to bear the expense of the work. Some years ago Thomy Lafon of New Orleans left $413,000 to educational and charitable institutions.

Meanwhile the work of the institutions maintained under the state auspices has greatly advanced. In the progressive state of North Carolina 88 of the 153 negro high schools are now accredited.

MISSIONARY APPEAL

Receding horizons was the topic of Dr. Maurice A. Levy of Pittsfield. It was a missionary appeal that the speaker stressed, urging that lure and adventure lay in going out into the far countries with a great faith and message.

How far are we thinking? the speaker asked. How large are our thoughts? If they go no farther than ourselves, that then is the measure of ourselves. The heart of Jesus went out to the whole world and it is in that spirit that we should respond to the need of service. Each of us has a sphere of influence, and that should be extended mentally and spiritually to include larger areas of service for our fellows in the name of Christ.

The speaker for Friday evening was Col. Raymond Robbins of New York, who spoke on world peace, law enforcement, and leadership.

On Sunday, the 10:45 service was Recreation Friday took the form of swimming in Wanamaker lake, a special faculty comedy race being the feature. A baseball game was played between Norfolk-Plymouth unions and the Out-of-State group. Hiking and tennis were also enjoyed, to say nothing of horseshoes and croquet.

RUSSELL J. BLAIR BRINGS REPORT FROM WORLD CONFERENCE

A direct report of the World's Christian Endeavor Convention in Berlin was given Saturday to the Conference by the Field Secretary for the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Societies, Russell J. Blair of Boston, who landed from the Berengaria Friday night and came directly to Northfield. With his wife Mr. Blair received a royal welcome by the conference. On Sunday afternoon at the Consecration service, he gave a more full account of what happened in Berlin at the convention.

The winner of the Oratorical contest on Youth and Citizenship, which has been going on in the twelve different county societies since last April was decided Friday evening in Sage Chapel when the final three persons gave their speeches. First prize went to Miss Helen Marion Russell of Lowell, second prize to Miss Florence Higginbotham of Milbury, and third prize to Mr. Richard L. Chandler of Canton. A feature of the speaking was the emphasis placed upon prohibition, which indicates that the youth in the churches are alive to the significance of this issue in the thought of the day.

The last chapel service was conducted by Dr. Maurice A. Levy of Pittsfield, his subject being The Past and the Present. In the evening Col. Raymond Robbins of New York, formerly Chairman of the Progressive party with Roosevelt, and at present vitally interested in Law Enforcement, addressed the conference upon World Peace, Law Enforcement, and Leadership.

The closing exercises of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Conference at East Northfield were held Sunday with a full program of services attended by more than a thousand people.

Dr. Albert W. Beaven, President of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School of Rochester, New York, was the speaker at the morning and afternoon services. His subjects were The Impotence of Negative Goodness, and Christian Service as a Great Adventure. Mr. W. R. Moody, son of the evangelist, D. L. Moody, presided.

At the Graduation Service Saturday afternoon 600 certificates of award for creditable work done in classes during the conference. Professor A. Edwin Wells of Boston, Dean, presented the diplomas. Mr. A. Reis of Boston gave an Organ Recital in connection with this service.

EBEN S. DRAPER
CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR

Eben S. Draper, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, Tuesday night challenged his opponent, William M. Butler, to tell the Republican voters what he did for the workers of Massachusetts, particularly in the textile industry, when he was 'chairman of the Republican National Committee from 1924 to 1928, and an appointed United States Senator from Massachusetts from December, 1924 to March, 1927.'

The challenge was in the form of a suggestion question for the voters to ask, based on Mr. Butler's assertion that since 1923 the number of spindles in Massachusetts has been reduced from 12,000,000 to 8,000,000, representing a loss of $24,000,000 annually from the payrolls of the textile workers.

Mr. Draper was presented over Station WBZ by Henry Cabot Lodge, 3rd, who characterized the 48-hour amendment to improve labor conditions in Massachusetts, "as a type of election promise which rings pretty hollow when placed on the anvil of practical discussion." Mr. Lodge further declared, in pledging his active support to Mr. Draper, that the Hopewell man "is so sane and solid that you will never find him trimming his sails to every passing political breeze."

Mr. Draper, in his radio speech, said in part:

"In his campaign of four years ago my present opponent, while talking prosperity, gave as his reason for the textile depression that the women were not wearing cotton clothes—that prosperous times permitted them to afford silk. He did not suggest a Constitutional amendment to meet this factor. 'Similarly, it is admitted that the mills of the South have a lower scale of wages than our mills here in Massachusetts. But, my opponent is not suggesting a Constitutional amendment to require a universal wage scale."

"I cannot take this issue of my opponent's very seriously under these considerations. I believe thoroughly in the principle of the 48-hour week. Other States have recognized the leadership of Massachusetts in labor legislation, and many, by example means, have followed its example on the 48-hour law, have raised their standards to meet those long established here. I believe it is inevitable that the South will come to it—but it is no more possible to solve cycles of business depression by Constitutional amendment, in my opinion, than it is to bring true temperance by the same method."

"My opponent, if the truth is to be told, is at a loss for an issue in this campaign, inasmuch as his advisers are telling him it would be fatal for him to discuss prohibition—of which we all are aware. His sudden espousal of a national 48-hour week by Constitutional amendment, which certainly should not fool the workers of Massachusetts, is made to look as if he had discovered something new."

"As a matter of fact, it is far from being new. It was brought forth as far back as 1922 before a committee of the Massachusetts Legislature by the Arkwright Club—an organization of textile manufacturers of which my opponent was for three years president, and a director at the time—when it was seeking to repeal the 48-hour law in Massachusetts."

"My opponent has explained to the voters that since 1923 the number of spindles in Massachusetts has been reduced from 12,000,000 to 8,000,000, representing a loss of $24,000,000 annually from the payroll of our textile workers."

COLTON-COLTON

On Tuesday evening, August 26 Dr. Florence A. Colton and Robert N. Colton formerly of Billings, Mont., were united in marriage by Rev. Geo. E. Tyler at the Christian Advent Church, South Vernon, Vt. The double ring service being used. Only the immediate family were present. The bridal couple will visit Billings, Mont., on their wedding trip.

Jillson—Black

Miss Marion Jillson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis L. Jillson and Kenneth Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Black, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents in Bernardston, Thursday. Following a wedding trip through Canada they will make their home in Northfield.

ROBERT B. DODDS SPEAKS ON TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

In a recent address delivered before a group of graduate Yale Traffic Engineers, Robert B. Dodds, nationally known traffic authority, said:

"The traffic problem in any city is a community problem. One of the difficulties in its solution has been that each individual has approached it from the standpoint of his own interest. The individual motorist thinks of traffic congestion as something that restricts the speed at which he can drive his car through the city streets, and prevents him from parking where he wishes. The merchant thinks of traffic congestion as something which increases his delivery costs and causes restrictions to be placed on parking, but he objects strenuously to parking regulations which are designed to relieve congestion, as he thinks they are likely to injure his business. The transportation companies know traffic congestion in terms of its cost in increasing man-hours and capital investment per passenger-mile or per ton-mile. The general public attitude toward the traffic problem is one of irritation and criticism. Each citizen has his own ideas about methods for relieving congestion, and is prone to criticize the city officials if these ideas are not immediately accepted. These ideas, however, are based on personal experiences with the automobile, and are usually impractical because they do not take into account the many factors which must be considered in effecting an equitable solution to the problem."

An increasing number of people are gaining a new conception of the traffic problem as a whole. They are beginning to realize that traffic congestion and its attendant danger must be paid for, not only in personal inconvenience, but also in actual dollars, through the increase in price of commodities due to the high cost of transportation delays, and through insurance rates due to accident losses.

The growth of transportation facilities is a limiting factor in the development of the modern city, for transport traffic is the life blood of the community. Suspend transit facilities and our dependence on transportation is most strikingly demonstrated. Choke these facilities by congestion or unwise regulation, and the effects are just as far reaching although less obvious.

Losses to the city through traffic congestion and high accident rates are much greater than would appear on the surface. These losses are subtle and difficult to trace. In the first place traffic confusion is bad advertising for a city. In this present day when cities are bidding against each other for industries and citizens, and when it is so easy for a large proportion of the general public to choose its place of residence in a way that was not possible twenty-five years ago, the question of traffic confusion and inconvenience to travel in a city exerts an influence which is more powerful than is evident at first thought. People sometimes move from one location to another because natural resources have caused industries to locate in that particular section of the country. In some cases climate has been the cause of migration. In most cases how-

In some communities there exists the fallacious idea that the government of the community is a separate and distinct entity from the community itself, and the citizens of such a community are very likely to be apathetic to the affairs of government. The people feel that acts of the government departments affect them only indirectly. Nothing could be further from the truth. Every community pays for the most efficient possible system of traffic control, whether they have it or not. If they have it, they pay for it in actual cash. If they do not have it, they pay for part of it by paying for the more inefficient system that they do have, and the balance is paid for by the community in increased cost of commodities, increased insurance rates, increased loss of life and time due to avoidable traffic accidents, and loss of business which is diverted from the city because of its poor traffic conditions."

Henry Ford is being criticized for moving some of his plants to Germany and Ireland. Perhaps the fact that the tariff law which was passed over the protest of Mr. Ford has something to do with the move. When this country levies a tariff duty other countries retaliate by passing a tariff law against this country. It is cheaper to build plants in Ireland and Germany than it is to make cars and tractors here and pay the retaliatory duty necessary to get them on the European market. Grundy, the author and giver of the tariff is an efficient tool for the interests but he will find Ford thinking two jumps ahead of him.

RELIGION AND PEACE

In Bern, Switzerland, this month, there is being held a meeting which will go down in the history of the world and in the annals of religion. It is a meeting of a small group of practical visionaries who will come from all parts of the earth to draw up a specific program for a World Conference for International Peace through Religion to be held in 1932. The men and women engaged in this task represent all the major faiths of the world emphasis on the teachings of peace within every faith can be a warless world be assured. Religion must outlaw war, they state, for politics and governments by themselves can never build up the public attitude that will make war impossible. The leaders in this movement for world peace through religion are people of international prominence not only in the field of religion but in business, art, and professional life. They include Doctor Albert Einstein of Germany, Doctor R. Babindranath Tagore of India, Baroh Saketani of Japan, the Lord Bishop of Liverpool, England, and our own Doctor S. Parkes Cadman.

Thus around the counsel table this month will be gathered representatives of the Christians and the Jews, the Mohammedans and the Hindus, the Confucianists, Jains, Sikhs and other faiths, to plan for a world conference such as has never been held in the history of religion. From their deliberations should come a new hope for the long cherished day when all men shall live together in peace.

PROGRESS IN A GREAT INDUSTRY

The recent decision of the National Confectioner's Association to engage in a research program, the findings of which will be available to the entire industry, is a progressive forward step greatly to be commended. Candy has become a daily food in innumerable American households, and the confectioners will be rendering a public service, in keeping with their traditions, in pooling information which will give the consumer a uniformity acceptable product even in the sultry summer season.

Summer is undoubtedly the candy man's bete noir, not because of manufacturing conditions, which can always be controlled, but because of the consumer's lack of understanding as to the proper handling of confections. The effect of heat, humidity and exposure upon even the finest products must be understood by the general public as well as the manufacturer if confections which are so large a part of the summer diet, are to give satisfaction to the consumer. "Education cannot stop with the wholesaler and retailer but must be carried to the consumer if conditions are to be bettered," is the statement of E. V. Hutchins, President of the Association. Mr. Hutchins himself a scientist, and chairman of the Association's Committee on Research until his recent election, may be counted on to bring the full light of research into the industry. In adopting this attitude the candy industry is following the lead of allied food industries whose research programs have led to better public understanding, and from that point, to increased business.

TO GET RID OF ANTS

House-inhabiting ants, such as the little red or Pharaoh's ant, and other species that get into furniture, woodwork, etc., are difficult to eradicate because of their inaccessibility. If the nest can be located, destroy the inmates by injecting into the opening a little carbon disulphide, kerosene, or gasoline. Use an oil can or syringe. Take care, of course, to keep fire away from these inflammable materials. Dusting sodium fluoride about the runways of ants will kill them. Leave no food where ants can get at it.

A lighted match, cigarette, or cigar thrown from an airplane or other aircraft may set fire to a forest, grain field, or buildings. If you travel by this modern means of transportation, be careful not to throw out any burning material.

"It is a fact that he was chairman of the Republican National Committee from 1924 to 1928, and an appointed United States Senator from Massachusetts from December, 1924 to March, 1927—which represents a great part of the period of which he now speaks.

"I would suggest that the Republican voters of Massachusetts, therefore ask him one question. Here it is: "What did you do for the workers of Massachusetts, particularly in the textile industry, and where was your 48-hour week proposal during the years you were occupying these high offices?"

Mr. Lodge, in presenting Mr. Draper said: "In periods of business depression it is more than ever important to choose candidates for public office who are energetic and who can be counted on to be effective. This is true in spite of the self-evident fact that little or nothing can be done to bring prosperity through legislation. "But we can expect something helpful from a man who is not afraid to work and take pains. Such a man will not shrink from getting a fair deal for his constituents and will do more than laws can do to get this state its due. Many times during my tour of duty as a newspaperman in Washington have I been struck by what a zealous individual can do where law has shown itself unfitted for the task.

ever, the migration has been prompted by better general living conditions in the new location. Traffic confusion and congestion which make it tedious and unpleasant to travel back and forth through the city add their full share toward making the community less attractive than another where such conditions do not prevail. What loss a city sustains from this cause can never be exactly estimated except through a comparison of the growth of that city with the growth of other cities having similar natural resources and locations, but having better living conditions.

Traffic congestion chokes the growth of a city. This can be substantiated in numerous instances by pointing to localities where development has been held back by traffic congestion, but where a tremendous new development has been stimulated by the opening of a new boulevard or artery through the area, bringing new homes and new citizens to that section of the city. The use of arbitrarily timed mechanisms as a means of regulating traffic has cost municipalities untold sums of money due to the congestion created by this type of control. With the advent of vehicle-actuated signal systems this congestion has been removed and most cities are now adopting this method of control.

And now the information is that Silent Cal is to write a column for a Daily. We do not think Cal can do it. He has been educated by example and precept to think only of consequential things and by nature fool things never enter his head, but if we could advise him we would try to thump into his bean that it is the fool things that count.

Imagine Silent Cal writing anything like that. He just couldn't do it, that's all.

But alas the opportunity for us to advise never presents itself. Our forecast sometime ago that the farmer would be relieved of his wheat at 60 cents per bushel has arrived. The next thing you know he will be relieved of his corn at 25 cents a bushel.

When Anjenette gets her husband "cornered" there is no alley by which he can escape.

OUR SMALL TOWN SISTER'S WARDROBE

There was a time when the people in smaller communities clung to simplicity in fashion and "city folks" tended toward showiness. The current styles studied from the vantage of both large and small cities show a decided trend toward taking a leaf from the country fashion book. Simplicity and that casualness most suited to less rushing community life are becoming chic for city-folks.

Thus the small town girl going off to boarding school or college this year and taking with her a wardrobe chosen for its practical smartness, it simple appropriateness and becomingness will find herself wearing precisely what her city class mates of good taste will wear.

This will include semi-sports and active sports frocks, skirts and sweaters, probably a class room jersey frock—not warm and wooly for early fall days and later heated class rooms but for example one of those new knits which by combining wool with dured cotton are made considerably less "stretchy" and at the same time light weight. Then there should be a reefer afternoon frock for tea with the Dean or at the President's house; a dinner frock of crepe or chiffon, and possibly a "prom" gown for more formal evening wear.

Any or all of these items of dress may be duplicated to the number which it has been decided the young lady in question will need. Class room dresses will probably lead the list in quantity, but this should not diminish their simple attractiveness nor quality of material. They will get the most strenuous and constant wear. Dependant upon what sports are to be entered will be the active sports costume. Of course, there should be a fall coat for campus wear, though the jersey frocks can be made with matching or contrasting jackets. A winter coat in most climates will be a necessity. Don't forget both comfortable shoes and fancy slippers for evening, goloshes, berets and a hat for town trips.

The pullets in the poultry flock should get a good growing ration in late summer and early fall so they will be in laying condition by October, or at the latest by the first part of November. If the pullets start laying too early, however, reduce the amount of protein in the ration. It may also be advisable to omit milk from the ration. Pullets that begin to lay too early—4 to 5 months of age—are inclined to lay very small eggs; or they may lay a few eggs and then go into a molt.

Be more careful in making silage from legume crops than from non-leguminous crops, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Legumes have a lower sugar content from which the acids necessary in preserving silage are developed. All the legumes may be ensiled successfully if mixed with a crop containing much sugar, such as a corn or sorghum; or they may be ensiled alone if not too succulent when cut.

Be careful not to cook corn on the cob too long or it will be tough and tasteless. Have a large kettle of water boiling and drop the corn into the water for from 8 to 10 minutes. If there are not many ears.

"Storowton," Original New England Colonial Village
Forms Unique Eastern States Exposition Development

VISITORS to the 14th annual Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass., from Sept. 14 to 20 inclusive, will find in "Storowton," an original New England Colonial village, a development unique in conception and character and designed to provide adequate exhibition space and display for activities of the Exposition's Home Department, also to perpetuate for all time the best of early New England architecture.

Begun three years ago with the erection of the old Gilbert homestead, originally constructed in West Brookfield, Mass., in 1795, the village has been completed this year, and since June 15 has been inspected by thousands of tourists attracted to New England by the Massachusetts Bay

Tercentenary celebration. Throughout the summer the old structures have been open to the public. Equipped with original furnishings of the period in which they were built, they provide a vivid object lesson in the manners and customs of the earlier New Englanders.

As it is now constituted the development represents an expenditure of more than $250,000. It has been made possible through the generosity of Mrs. James J. Storow of Boston, and is without a parallel in the history of American fairs or Expositions.

Nine structures comprise the "Storowton" group. These are the Gilbert homestead; Potter mansion erected in North Brookfield, Mass., in 1792 and restored on the Exposition grounds in 1929; Eddy law office, built in Eddyville, Middleboro, Mass., in 1810; Webster meeting house built in Salisbury, N. H., in 1800; red brick Whately, Mass., schoolhouse, erected about 1805; Phillips house or Cape Cod cottage, built in 1867 in Taunton, Mass.; old stone blacksmith shop constructed about 1820 in Chesterfield, N. H.; Atkinson store, built by Capt. John Atkinson in Atkinson Hollow, Prescott, Mass., in 1800, and town hall, constructed in Southwick, Mass., about 1810. All are true to type and provide a quaint and restful note in the more modern types of other Exposition buildings.

During the forthcoming Exposition, the colonial village and its accompanying exhibit structures will be utilized to portray woman's sphere of activity in the home. In keeping with the Tercentenary idea, all will be furnished in period and "Storowton" will provide the one place in the East where an early New England community can be seen and inspected in its entirety. Mansion, tavern and town hall will be used for meetings and demonstration purposes with exhibits on the lower floor of the town house. Noonday services will be conducted in the Webster church, providing a few moments for rest and relaxation by those attending the Exposition, while in the smaller cottages of the Home Department group there will be a series of interesting displays featuring every possible phase of homemaking.

Cold Dishes For Hot Days

By JOSEPH BOGGIA, Chef
 The Plaza Hotel, New York City

WHEN the dog days are upon us, and our appetites must be tempted with a special appeal if they are to respond with their wonted vigor, nothing is more appropriate than a cold main dish for either the noon or evening meal.

Carefully prepared, with a proper use of seasonings, and thoroughly chilled before serving, jellied dishes well deserve the more prominent place they are rapidly being given on the summer menu. Meat, seafoods or vegetables may constitute the chief ingredient, or we may decide upon a combination of the last with either of the other two.

Tongue in Aspic—Wash and scrub a beef tongue in salted water and boil until tender. Remove skin and place the tongue in a saucepan. Add two onions, one stalk of celery, four cloves, and salt and pepper. Cover with liquor in which tongue was boiled. Add one blade of mace, one bunch of thyme, one bunch of parsley and one teaspoon sugar. Simmer for two hours. Remove tongue. For each pint of the liquor add one tablespoon of gelatin that has been soaked in cold water. Stir for two minutes over very low flame. Strain and pour over tongue. Chill thoroughly, garnish with watercress, and serve.

Fish in Jelly—Bring to a boil in a saucepan the following mixture: one cup thick tomato puree, one cup water, one-fourth cup vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon sugar, one-half teaspoon mace, and one bay leaf. Simmer for ten minutes. Add one and a half tablespoons gelatin soaked for five minutes in one-fourth cup cold water. Remove immediately from fire. Let gelatin dissolve. Then strain mixture and cool. Have ready one cup cooked peas, one-half cup chopped celery, and one green pepper, seeded and chopped fine. Cover bottom of cold, wet ring mold with a layer of peas. Then one of the celery and green pepper. Cover with the thickened gelatin mixture, and continue in this order until all ingredients are used. Chill two hours before serving. When ready to serve turn out of mold in bed of lettuce. In center pile two cups cold cooked or canned fish, well broken up and mixed with three-fourths cup salad dressing. Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

Defective Chimney Real Fire Hazard

Annual Heating Plant Cleaning Will Reveal Flue and Chimney Defects.

Structurally unsound chimneys are an important contributing factor to the large number of home fires that are characteristic of the annual heating season, according to the Holland Institute of Thermology of Holland, Mich. House fires could be materially reduced and millions of dollars saved home owners annually, says the institute, if heating systems were given a thorough cleaning and examination at least once a year.

Defective chimneys and flues are prolific sources of roof and basement

fires. Due to corrosion, flue pipes within a season or two become filled with holes through which sparks of fire find their way into the basement, often lodging in the super-dry wooden structural parts. Chimneys settle, flue linings disintegrate and become separated, and the acridous gases generated by firing destroy the mortar joints. Through the cracks thus developed live sparks and burning soot set fire to the roof or walls.

There is but one way which these defects can be located with a degree of certainty are serious trouble develops, and that is by vacuum cleaning, which has been acclaimed the most satisfactory method devised. This is by means of a truck-mounted cleaner which operates on the same principle as a household type vacuum cleaner. The dirt bag into which the soot and dust are blown is 40 feet long and when inflated in the cleaning operation is about six feet in diameter. Operators of these especially designed cleaners follow the cleaning with an inspection and testing service which reveals defects such as mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs.

Heating systems are subjected to hard service and extreme temperature changes and if given periodical attention will render longer and more satisfactory service. By having heating systems cleaned, inspected and repaired now, home owners avoid the congestion and delay usually incident to having this work done in the fall when the heating season commences, and the system is in A-1 condition for firing with the first touch of chilly weather.

LIST DANGERS IN NEGLECTED PLANT

Now Is the Logical Time to Overhaul Heating System.

Going into the heating season with an uninspected home heating system which may have hidden defects is as unwise as starting on a transcontinental automobile tour without first having your car completely inspected by competent mechanics. It subjects the family to three great dangers, warns the Holland Institute of Thermology, of Holland, Mich.

First, unsatisfactory heating menaces the health of the whole family. Second, there is a danger that fire may occur owing to some defect in the heating plant and burn down the house. Third, the family purse is in danger of unnecessary expenditures; the householder may pay many times the cost of a thorough inspection and overhauling for fuel required by in efficient heating plant operation. And incidentally the owners of new plants will find it profitable to follow the manufacturers' instructions on economical firing.

According to the institute's engineers, there are four chief parts of the heating system that should be inspected at the commencement of each heating season. As much as 10 per

TO give an unusually delicious flavor to your summer beverages, add to a base of sweetened lemonade, tart jellies of different varieties, beaten until syrupy. The brightly colored jellies are as valuable for their color effects as they are for the distinctive flavors they impart. Two or three teaspoons of a large glass is about the right proportion.

When hanging recently washed curtains, if you have a trying time running the rod through the hem, put a thimble on the end of the rod. Then you'll have no trouble getting it through, even though the hem is stiff and stuck together. Best of all, you'll eliminate the risk of tearing delicate fabrics.

Grange Observes N. H. Night

New Hampshire night was observed at the Grange Aug. 20 with a most interesting program as follows: Song, The Grange is Marching On, chorus; reading, New Hampshire, Mrs. R. M. Langworthy; roll call, Things That Have Put Granite State Folks in the Limelight; song, My Old New Hampshire Home, Mrs. Mark Chamberlain; address, My Trap Through Old Hampshire, Miss A. M. Barrows; song, Hurrah for Old New Hampshire, chorus. A series of tableaux followed representing the seasons. The series: Spring, sugaring, by Levi Howard and Mrs. Harley Sheldon; Summer, hay-making, by Thomas Bouillard and Iris Streeter; Autumn, husking, by Ezra Pike, Mrs. Mattie Lafford and Mrs. Fannie Bushey; Winter, carrying produce to market, by Frank Walker and Miss Doris Wellington; specialty, March of the Seasons.

On Sept. 3 there will be a discussion on How May We As a Grange Give More Active Support to Our Agricultural Fairs? The speakers will be William E. Watson, Mrs. G. S. Smith, Mrs. A. F. Fisher and Wilfred N. Pike. There will be special music.

New Hampshire State Building Ready For Eastern States Exposition Opening

NEW HAMPSHIRE'S imposing $60,000 permanent state building on the Avenue of States at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass., is rapidly approaching completion and will be finished and in readiness for the opening of the 14th annual fair Exposition on Sunday, Sept. 14. The structure will be dedicated officially by Gov. Charles W. Tobey on Tuesday, Sept. 16, at 11 o'clock, and through Exposition week will be devoted to exhibits and displays of agricultural, industrial, commercial, educational, natural and recreational resources of the Granite State.

In architectural treatment, the New Hampshire building conforms to that of the Massachusetts, Maine and Vermont state buildings, and the structure of the old New England village, all in its immediate vicinity. It is of early Georgian or colonial style, following the same general type as the other exhibition buildings, yet strikingly distinctive. This distinction has been obtained by use of the gambrel roof, typical of New England and of which New Hampshire has many fine examples. This type of roof, together with the high chimneys on the end gables makes an unusual combination and adds to the effect of height. Further originality is shown in the curved porch with its supporting columns of granite. Such a porch was used on the White House in Washington and has proved of exceptional dignity and architectural beauty.

New Hampshire granite has been used so far as possible for columns, steps, window ledges and other exterior trim. Walls are of New Hampshire brick. Roofs are of slate and floors of re-inforced concrete. The building is serviced for water, gas, drainage and electricity. There is a large balcony on the second floor level for conference purposes. The main exhibition hall is 84x96 feet. Exhibition booths are 12 feet square and main aisles extend the length of building.

One of the New Hampshire building's outstanding features and a new departure in state building construction is the third floor room over the balcony. This room, 32 feet wide by 86 feet long, divided crosswise by a reception hall, will be utilized for dormitory space for New Hampshire Boy and Girl club members attending the Eastern States Exposition. There are two large open dormitories and two smaller rooms, shower baths, lavatories, etc.

Other distinctive features are a large map of New Hampshire, in colors, built in the main entrance walk, showing the counties of the state and the location of its principal cities, while in the interior there are large rooms on the balcony floor for use of meetings by state associations, the Governor and offices of the building commission. W. H. McLean of Boston is the architect and the general contractor is L. S. Wood of Springfield.

ATHOL FAIR

Still going strong; one of the few big fairs to show year after year. The management assures you the fair will be better than ever this year. Many new and novel features will be there as well as new ideas and creations.

Best of vaudeville, six star circus acts. Including the Aerial Leons, 3 people who perform thrilling acts way up in the air. The great Marion troupe, a wonder of the bar and trapeze. The Dodos, clowns. Jesse Leon and Co. an animal act with monkeys,
dogs, ponies and a real kicking mule.
Fun galore. Bimbo, a high pole specialist, 40 feet in the air. The "B.
LaBarrows", a wonderful, unusual act,
and the Hector quartet. Starrett's Band, Hall filled with all kinds of exhibits, 3 big floors, largest hall for any 2 day fair in New England.

Fast exciting Horse racing. Three classes each day. Bouncing races.
The exhibition Hall will be dazzling and brilliant, filled with all kinds of exhibits, agricultural, mechanical,
manufactured, educational, instructive, entertaining. A flower show, a Grange show, sewing and fancy work,
a children's exhibit.

Live stock exhibits. Great herds of cattle, biggest ever. 150 head of thoroughbreds. Sheep, swine, a mammoth poultry show of 1,000 birds, pet stock, rabbits, hares, cats, etc.

One half mile of midway embracing everything. Fun galore. Pulling Match. Athol Stages the best horse pulling match of any fair. A real old fashioned pull on the boat. 3 classes both days. Great teams from far and near will pull. A work horse parade Monday. These beautiful teams of heavy work horses will "dress up" Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Also a cattle parade at this time.

Horseshoe pitching under National rules. Athol Fair is a member of the National Association. Get in on this, boys.

Dancing afternoon and nights. Big night shows, Saturday and Monday.
Wonder display of Fireworks each night.

Band concert Sunday. Starrett's
Band, 25 pieces. Gates open at 1
P. M. All exhibits open. All roads lead to the Athol Fair.

LAKE PLEASANT

Last Sunday ushered in the last week of camp meeting with Mr. Harold Alderson as the speaker and psychic in the morning and Rev. C.
Bradley as the message medium for the afternoon and evening services.
Excellent audiences were in attendance all day and Mr. Blinn held the close attention of his hearers while speaking upon the subject, "If Spiritualism is true—what then?"

Mrs. Bradley also occupied the platform at the Temple Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon and her splendid demonstrations of clairvoyant
vision and psychic power made a profound impression.

Rev. Theodore Russell of Buffalo, whose psychic powers made such a sensation here earlier in the month, attracting the largest audiences since the days of Mary Pepper Vanderbilt, arrived Wednesday for a return engagement and will be the lecturer Friday afternoon and Sunday afternoon,
following his addresses with demonstrations of his remarkable medium-ship, and will hold a message service Sunday evening, this service closing the camp meeting for this year.

It has been the most prosperous season that the New England Spiritualist Camp Meeting Association has enjoyed for years.

Record breaking attendance at the dances and unusually large audiences
at all the meetings, with splendid financial conditions and an increased membership has marked the season's progress.

While the convocation will close
Sunday, the Saturday evening dances will continue through the month of September with the same orchestra.
Goodenough's Singing Orchestra of Orange, to furnish the music.

Rev. Albert P. Blinn received word
last week of the revocation of his license to operate a car. Mr. Blinn has operated a car since 1912 without an accident, but during recent years his sight has gradually failed, and in a recent examination he was unable to pass the eye test. He will give up driving entirely and sell his Ford car.

The band concert given here last Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by a host of delighted hearers and the en-cores of the different numbers were frequent and appreciative. The solos were especially fine.

HENRY CABOT LODGE 3RD COMES OUT FOR DRAPER RELIGION AND PEACE

Henry Cabot Lodge, 3rd, recently announced his unqualified and enthusiastic support of Eben S. Draper of Hopedale for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. As indication of the whole-heartedness of his action, Mr. Lodge volunteered to present Mr. Draper to the radio audience Tuesday night at 7:45 o'clock
over Station WBZ.

"Of course I'm for Draper," said Mr.
Lodge, "and I look forward to the privilege of presenting him over WBZ tonight."

The announced decision of Mr.
Lodge to support Mr. Draper and to take an active part in the campaign,
comes as a flat reply to the efforts which have made for weeks by the forces of William M. Butler to have the public believe that it was the wish of the late Senator Lodge that Mr.
Butler succeed him in the United States Senate. Many of the friends of the late Senator have been disturbed and incensed by the bringing of Senator
Lodge's name into the campaign.

By announcing himself publicly for Mr. Draper as against Mr. Butler, the grandson of Senator Lodge joins the rapidly growing throng of young Republicans who are endeavoring to rescue the Republican party from the reactionary influences of the Old Guard.

Already there have been similar announcements from such men as Benjamin Loring Young, James Jackson, Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton, Col.
Percy A. Guthrie, Christian A. Herter
—the intimate friend of President Hoover—and a list of equally prominent men and women who have the party welfare at heart. This group, upon which the future success of the party must depend, believes that Mr.
Draper is the only candidate for the Senate who can win the election in November.

With the primaries now only three weeks away, the Draper forces are planning to speed up their activities.
They have several surprises yet in store during the remainder of the campaign, and report unprecedented interest from every section of the State in Mr. Draper's candidacy.

"I know that I tell you the soberest truth when I say that Eben Draper is the man to do the job for Massachusetts in Washington today. Everyone knows his courage, his steadfastness,
and his unwavering loyalty to the causes in which he believes. To this general knowledge I add my bit of personal observation. As a correspondent at the State House, I often saw the man's industry and capacity for taking pains. Regardless of whether the Legislature was in session or not, you would find Eben Draper on the job through the hot summer, working for the State. How tedious the work seemed at the time, but how rich in result! Nothing is too small for him if it will improve the lot of a Massachusetts man or woman, and nothing seems like trouble to this goodhearted man if it will redound to the credit of Massachusetts.

"I am glad to note the widespread feeling that only Draper can keep a Republican in the Senate from Massachusetts at the coming election. This him on September 16. But it is not is ample justification for voting for the only one. Draper is young; he is Where better business is concerned he is energetic; he is a business man.
is plainly indicated. His dool will always be open. On other questions we may well have confidence in him. He is experienced; he is courageous; he is loyal. He is so sane and solid that you will never find him trimming his sails to every passing political breeze.
"Indeed it gives me a unusual pleasure to present to you my able friend,
Eben S. Draper."

governors and the spectacular arena program in honor of the distinguished visitors.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

WITH fruits and berries plentiful and cheap, and sugar selling at a price as low as we have seen in a generation, this is the ideal year
for special activity in home preserving. Put up in attractively sealed and labeled glasses and jars, jams and jellies will make inexpensive and deeply appreciated Christmas gifts for friends and relatives
when the Yule season rolls around.

A few juniper berries, obtainable
at the drug store, placed in a frying pan that has been heated until very hot, will release aromatic fumes which will quickly drive the odor of cooking out of the house.

You see our young wife has placed all the vegetables and a roast in the electric oven. She has set the automatic time controls to turn on the heat at 3:30 and to shut off at 5:45.
So at the usual time dinner will be served perfectly cooked.
And with it all our young wife has enjoyed herself all the

Side Dishes Point Up Flavors

By ETIENNE ALLIO, Chef,
Hotel New Yorker, New York City

SIDE dishes—the various slaws, a bit of fruit prepared in some unusual manner—point up the flavors of the dishes with which they are served, and go far toward giving the added zest of surprise and variety.

Deserving a far greater popularity than they now enjoy, it is hard to say why, except for the ordinary cole slaw, they so seldom appear upon the home
table unless guests are present. They are inexpensive and easy
to prepare, and there seems to be no good reason why they should not become regular items
of the family
menu.

Peach and Pineapple Curry—Fill the bottom of a casserole with a layer of sliced, canned pineapple.
Dot with butter and sprinkle with two teaspoons brown sugar and one teaspoon curry powder. Add a layer of canned peaches and sprinkle with the same amounts of brown sugar and curry powder.

Repeat the process until the dish is filled. On the top layer, which should consist of peaches, double the amount of sugar and curry.
Bake for one-half hour in a moderate oven. For those who like more or less curry, the amount may be varied. Delicious with roast lamb.

Cheese Slaw—Let one pint of shredded cabbage stand in cold water until fresh and crisp. Dry and mix with five tablespoons grated cheese. Mix one tablespoon vinegar, one teaspoon mixed mustard,
one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, few grains cayenne. Add three-fourths cup buttermilk, mixing thoroughly. Pour over the cabbage and cheese. Garnish with green pepper rings.

Banana Vinaigrette—Peel and slice lengthwise four or five large, firm bananas. Pack in shallow casserole. Mix together one tablespoon vinegar, one-half cup beef
stock, one-fourth cup brown sugar.
Pour over bananas. Dot with four large tablespoons butter and bake in hot oven for twenty minutes.
Serve with roast beef.

Entries For Springfield Horse Show Give International Social Flavor

SOME of the most famous stables of harness horses and ponies in America will be seen at the 1930 Springfield Horse Show conducted under the direction of the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass., Sept. 14 to 20 inclusive. Saddle horses, particularly the five gaited classes indicate increased public favor in this type of animal while the thrills will be furnished by hunters, jumpers and polo ponies. Society has continued its approval of this annual indoor classic which marks the official opening of New England's fall and winter social season.

Governors of Ten Northeastern States Will Officially Open Big Exposition

GOVERNORS, their staffs and distinguished citizens of the ten North Atlantic States will attend the opening of the 14th annual Eastern States exposition at Springfield, Mass., on Sunday and Monday, Sept. 14 and 15. Acceptances have been received from Governors William Tudor Gardner of Maine, Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire, John W. Weeks of Vermont, Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts, Norman S. Case of Rhode Island, John H. Trumbull of Connecticut and C. Douglass Buck of Delaware. The Governors will conduct a public reception in the Coliseum Sunday evening, Sept. 14, inspect the Exposition Monday, Sept. 15, and officially open the Springfield Horse Show Monday evening.

AMERICA LEADS CHEMICALS

The United States is the largest single factor in the World's chemical industry and one-half of the five-billion dollars worth of American chemicals claimed for our Nation. Another billion dollars worth of American chemicals annually enters into the foreign Nations. Today the United States is by far the World's greatest producer of chemicals and the Department of Commerce at Washington states that our imports total more than those of any other country.

It is well known that Germany was the "white-haired" leader in many branches of the chemical industry, notably dyes, before the war, but that nation lost a good deal of its supremacy to America. According to the Commerce Department industrial chemicals are sold largely to manufacturers for special uses in other products.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION

Blackberry juice makes an appetizing punch, combined with other fruit juices, lemon, sugar, and ginger ale.

When a baked potato is done, work it until the skin is loose, jab a fork into one side and make an opening to let out the steam. Drop in a lump of butter and serve at once.

Mildew stains, when very fresh, may sometimes be washed out with soap and water, or bleached in the sun. The growth of mildew is at first on the surface of materials that have been allowed to become damp, but in a short time these molds penetrate the fiber and injure it, and are almost impossible to eradicate. Soaking the stains in sour milk overnight and placing in the sun without rinsing, will sometimes help. Slight stains are sometimes removed by moistening them with lemon juice and salt and placing in the sun. Javelle water, used as a bleach will take out mildew stains on white cotton or linen but should never be used on silk or wool. Chemicals are also used at times. Mildew on shoes may be wiped off as soon as detected, and the shoes washed with soap and warm water, and well dried. Stuff the shoes with soft crumpled paper or dry oats, and dry in a warm, but not hot place.

After an apple pie is baked, lay thin slices of cheese over the top, and put in a very moderate oven until the cheese is melted. Serve at once while the cheese is warm.
